BY F. HOPKINSON SMITH

In Dickens's London

With 24 full page illustrations from charcoal drawings by the author.

Full of the spirit and humor of Dickens and of the mellow atmosphere of soot-stained London, the home of so many of his characters and of himself.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

SCRIBNER BOOKS

Half Hours

By J. M. BARRIE

"Pantaloons," "The Twelve Pound Look," "Rosalind," and "The Will."

From the delightful, romantic fantasy of "Pantaloons" to the present day realism of "The Twelve Pound Look" represents the wide scope of Sir James Barrie's dramatic work. All these plays, though quite diverse in subject, are beautifully characteristic of Barrie at his best. Not only is the dialogue vividly spontaneous, but the stage directions also are full of a subtle humor and imagination.

Memories

By JOHN GALSWORTHY

This is a charmingly sympathetic biographical sketch of a dog—a spaniel that came into the author's possession almost at birth and remained with him through life. It has none of the imaginative exaggeration common in modern animal stories—records nothing improbable at all. But the author's insight and his power of interpretation individualize the little spaniel and bring him into the reader's intimate sympathy. The text is made even more vivid by Miss Earl's delightful pictures.

Illustrated with four full-page colored illustrations and a large number in black and white by MAUD EARL. $1.50 net; postage extra.

The Basketry Book

By MARY MILES BLANCHARD

A carefully prepared, complete guide to the ancient craft of interweaving reeds—a craft which was probably the origin of all the textile arts of the world. Beginning with descriptions of tools and materials, the author proceeds by easy stages through all the simpler weaves to the more elaborate designs until "in our work we follow the Indian idea of making the basket the exponent of something within ourselves."

Illustrated, $2.00 net; postage extra.

Robert Frank

By SIGURD IBSEN

Henrik Ibsen's only son is the author of this drama, which William Archer, the distinguished English critic, considers convincing proof that he possesses "dramatic faculty in abundance." Mr. Archer defines it as "a powerful and interesting play which claims attention on its own merits," eminently a play of today, or, rather, perhaps of tomorrow.

$1.25 net; postage extra.

The Trawler

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY

Winner of the $2,500 prize awarded by "Collier's" for the best short story.

"It is literature. In thought, in elevation of sentiment, . . . in strength, and finish of writing, it is entitled to a place of permanence."—Theodore Roosevelt.

"It seems to me to promise to be a definite and permanent contribution to English literature."—Mark Sullivan.

50 cents net; postage extra.

THE LAST SHOT

By FREDERICK PALMER

The story of a titanic war that is coming true day by day. "The Last Shot" is not mere romance, it is prophecy, scientifically accurate, written by an expert on modern war.

$1.35 net; postage extra.

Germany and the Germans

By PRICE COLLIER

"We shall have war when the German Kaiser touches a button and gives an order, and the German people will have no more to say in the matter than you and I." In view of the fact that this book first appeared more than a year before the present war, the above sentence from the chapter, "Frederick to Bismarck" is of startling significance.

New and cheaper edition at half the former price.

The Poems of Edgar Allen Poe

With an Introduction by E. C. STEDMAN and Notes by Professor G. E. WOODBERRY.

Nearly half a century passed after the death of Poe before the appearance of the Stedman-Woodberry edition of his works, which embodied in its editorial departments critical scholarship of the highest class. In this volume of Poe's "Poems" the introduction and the notes treat not only of the more significant aspects of Poe's genius as a poet, but of his technical methods, and of scores of bibliographical and personal matters suggested by his verses. While the text of this volume is the same as that of the Stedman-Woodberry edition, the book has been entirely reset in larger type.

With portrait, $2.00 net.

And So They Were Married

A Comedy of the New Woman

By JESSE LYNCH WILLIAMS

A sparkling comedy satirizing the conventional view of marriage which involves the subjection of woman.

"An immense amount of cleverness has gone to the writing of Mr. Williams' comedy. Its dialogue sparkles and has point; its situations are ingeniously contrived. . . . It furnishes capital reading."—New York Tribune.

"The most agreeable and wholesome of recent written offerings on the marriage problem."—N. Y. World.

The author has taken for her subject the truly great idea of the reclamation of the American Desert which in a large degree depends on the control of the all but untamable Colorado River and subsequent extensive irrigation.

Thoroughly American in theme, ambitious, many-sided and yet unified. THE RIVER stands out from among current fiction as a novel that has the right to be heard.

A man's book—a woman's book. A book that never grows old—never out of date. In Alexander Hendrie, the author has created a character human to the core—an individual—a living, breathing reality to the reader. "The Way of the Strong" is a big book. It is full of action and vigor, full of romance, achievement and tense situations. "The Way of the Strong" is a book that always sells—next year as well as next week. It does not appeal to popular fancy one half as strongly as it appeals to the deeper and more lasting emotions. "The Way of the Strong" will still be a big seller when today's big sellers are forgotten. Read it. Then recommend it.

THE EYES of the WORLD

HAROLD BELL WRIGHT'S GREATEST NOVEL

Illustrations in Colors by F. Graham Cootes

Cloth 12mo $1.35 Net

A Real Love Story, with bigger plot and more action, deeper mystery and greater love, sweeter sentiment and stronger passions than any novel the author has yet written. A delightfully wholesome romance among orange groves and mountains of Southern California. It is more masterful than "Barbara Worth," and more romantic than "The Shepherd of the Hills." The real charm of the story is its style, color, conception and fancies.

Harold Bell Wright has told this delightful romance so convincingly, and has so clearly defined the underlying purpose of the story, that it is stamped with the truthfulness of a chapter out of real life. The theme, "the ministry of art and letters," is most opportune for the cause of more wholesome books. "The Eyes of the World" is delightfully wholesome, stirring in action and sweet with sentiment for Christmas giving.

Buffalo Evening News—It is pleasant to commend work that already has created so great an interest in its coming and find that it makes good on the promises of the publisher.

The Causes and the Issues of the War in Europe

Treitschke

G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish immediately a volume presenting the Writings of the Great German Historian, which have shaped the present policy of Germany in its attempt to secure a dominating influence in Europe and throughout the world. The following is a brief summary of the subjects presented in this distinctive work. It contains also a biographical and critical study by Adolf Hausrath, a near friend of Treitschke.

Heinrich von Treitschke

1. Treitschke's Life and Work, by Adolf Hausrath. 2. The Army. 3. International Law. 4. German Colonization. 5. The Two Emperors. 6. In Memory of the Great War. 7. Germany and the Neutral States. 8. Austria and the German Emperor. 9. Russia from the German Point of View. 10. On Liberty.

Treitschke was a close friend of Bismarck, and his list of pupils included the political and military leaders of the present generation, such as the Emperor William, Bernhardt, and others.

Lord Acton says of Treitschke: "He is the one writer of history who is more brilliant and more powerful than Droysen; he writes with the force and incisiveness of Mommsen, but he concerns himself with the problems of the present day, problems that are still demanding solution.

They will also print at once a volume by the Hon. James M. Beck, Late Assistant Attorney General of the U. S.,

The Supreme Court of Civilization

The Cause of the Double Alliance vs. The Triple Entente

In this work the scholarly author sums up, speaking as a judge in a world's court of absolute impartiality, the causation for the present European War, and the relative responsibilities of the nations that are parties to this war. The author's verdict is based upon the official documents in the case, and these documents are presented in the original text as an appendix to the argument.

EXIT THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE good ship "American Publishers' Association" which has weathered many a storm has at last been wrecked upon the rock of anti-trust legislation and judicial decision and finally abandoned by those who stuck to the ship till the last. To drop metaphor, it has been finally and formally decided to bring to an end the American Publishers' Association after the good work of many years, because of the legal obstacles in the way of associate effort and of the clouds of misunderstanding which in these days obscure any efforts to bring about through such associate effort better conditions of trade. It has therefore been resolved by those publishers who have continued their membership in the American Publishers' Association, done their part to settle their associated obligations under the Macy decision, and stood by to the last, to wind up the Association with 1914, not without hope that the good work which has been accomplished by the Association may have continuing and permanent result.

We give elsewhere a sketch of the history of the American Publishers' Association since its organization in 1900; and we take the opportunity to repeat, after the event, what we have often before said, that the Association has never been really a trust or an endeavor to stifle competition. The courts have, however, decided that any associate effort to maintain prices, first in respect to non-copyright, and finally in respect to copyrighted books, brings the effort within the bound of the Sherman Anti-trust Law, and from the Supreme Court of the United States there is no further appeal, even when that supreme jury is more divided than in the series of cases here decided.

There remain two fundamental facts, first, that there has never been any endeavor through the American Publishers' Association or otherwise to dictate the price at which books should be published; and, secondly, no possible organization could prevent the entrance into the field of publishing of new firms and new competitors. This is shown especially in the educational field, where the American Book Company, formed by the purchase of the business of almost all the leading educational publishers of the day, has met with a growing competition from an increasing number of school book publishers. What the American Publishers' Association endeavored to do was to provide that the price fixed by the publisher, each for himself, on a specified book, should be honorably maintained throughout the trade, and to make it impossible to sell books below or so close to cost as to produce undue competition in the retail field and drive other dealers out of business. The latter was what the American Tobacco Trust did; but it is just this that the American Publishers' Association never did, never attempted to do, and never desired to do.

The contest finally centered in the practice of the Macy department store, through its book department, in advertising books at rates in many cases actually below specific cost and inviting the public to consider that the relative prices on such books were evidence that the same reduction in prices prevailed throughout the other departments of the store. With overhead charges as high as those in any line of retail business, it is well known that a department store must go into bankruptcy, as so many have done within the past year or so, unless it gets approximately 25 per cent. average profit on its entire sales. It cannot, any more than any other business, persist on the theory of the proverbial apple woman that she could make money by selling apples which cost three cents at two cents apiece because she sold so many! But the courts have decided that such effort as that of the American Publishers' Association to maintain fair and straight prices is banned by the law—and there is nothing more to be said.

The American Publishers' Association, as the historical sketch indicates, has done much very good work, and in large measure has rescued the trade from the demoralization of prices which, when it was organized, was gradually reducing the field of retail book-selling. We shall hope that retail bookselling will not again fall, under the temptation of rival undercutting, into the abyss from which it was then rescued. Let common-sense prevail here as in other business, and let no one cut off his nose because his opposite or next-door neighbor is setting an example. Efficiency and persistence under difficulties must tell in the long run and the actual service rendered the community by the wideawake bookseller, who insists on getting a fair profit for his goods, must be recognized.

The demise of the Association leaves this important trade without any form of association, with the single exception of the American Publishers' Copyright League. This state of things is much to be regretted, but it was finally, perhaps wisely, thought, after the defeat of the American Publishers' Association in the long legal battle, that it was better to disband altogether. The Copyright League, since its original organization in 1851 and reorganization in 1887, has done even longer service in the interest of publishers, and although it cannot wisely take up such trade questions as involved the other association in difficulties, it may to some extent enlarge its field and be a useful means of bringing and keeping the trade together, especially in international relations. Let us therefore express the hope that those publishers who have not joined the Copyright League may now become members, and through its efficient secretary, George Haven Putnam, whose recently published report shows the value of the services of the League, may still continue in touch with those in kindred work here and across sea.

OWING to the large number of orders received for imprinted editions of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY'S "War List" the date for the receipt of such orders has been extended to November 15. Shipments of orders already received will be made the first part of next week. A number of libraries have ordered substantial editions for distribution.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION—1900-1914.

THE history of the American Publishers' Association is practically a history of the Macy book trade litigation, that long fight for the maintenance of net prices to which the bookseller and publisher may look back as the colonists did to the battle of Bunker Hill, a defeat, it is true, but a defeat which brought with it so much cause for self-congratulation in the sense of solidarity, that it may almost be regarded as a victory.

For the twenty-five years following the early demise of the American Book Trade Association, an organization composed of both publishers and booksellers, which faded away not long after its third convention in Philadelphia in 1876, the booktrade had been practically disorganized and sorely beset by the price-cutter. It was with the idea of remedying some of these evils that, in July, 1900, twenty-seven representative publishers met in New York at the invitation of Messrs. D. Appleton & Co., the Century Co., Dodd, Mead & Co., Harper & Bros., Houghton Mifflin & Co., the Macmillan Co., G. P. Putnam Sons and Charles Scribner's Sons.

At this meeting the formation of an American Publishers' Association was considered, it being judged that such an organization would render a distinct service not merely to the publishers themselves, but to authors, booksellers, book purchasers, and, indeed, to everyone brought into contact, directly or indirectly, with the publishing business, and that lack of such co-operation had resulted in the growth of minor abuses distinctly unfair to both producer and consumer.

The report of the Temporary Committee having been unanimously adopted, the following firms filed their names with the secretary: D. Appleton & Co., Bowen-Merrill Co., Century Co., Henry T. Coates & Co., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., Dodd, Mead & Co., Doubleday, Page & Co., Funk & Wagnalls Co., Harper & Bros., Houghton Mifflin & Co., John Lane, Lee & Shepard, J. B. Lippincott Co., Little, Brown & Co., Longmans, Green & Co., A. C. McClurg & Co., McClure, Phillips Co., The Macmillan Co., Thomas Nelson & Sons, G. P. Putnam's Sons, James Pott & Co., Fleming H. Revell & Co., R. H. Russell, Charles Scribner's Sons, Silver, Burdett & Co., Small, Maynard & Co., Frederick A. Stokes Co. The following officers were elected: President, Charles Scribner; vice-presidents, A. C. McClurg and George Mifflin; secretary, George P. Brett; treasurer, G. B. M. Harvey. A committee was appointed to draft articles of association for submission to members at an early date. On the first of October a circular letter was sent to the retail trade in an endeavor to learn its opinion on the questions confronting the association. The views of the booksellers were asked on the question of prices and discounts, and they were questioned as to their willingness to form a Booksellers' Association, which would undertake to inform the American Publishers' Association of cases of price-cutting.

By December the American Publishers' Association was able to announce that it had secured the promise of co-operation from practically all the leading publishers in the country.

February 16, 1901, saw the association's plans of reform adopted. In accordance with this plan, the members agreed to publish all new copyright books at net prices, except school books, subscription books, books not sold through the trade, new editions and such works of fiction (not juveniles) as the individual publisher might desire.

The publishers, moreover, agreed to sell to those booksellers only who would maintain the retail price of such net copyrighted books for one year, and who would not resell to known price-cutting concerns. The association suggested a discount on net copyrighted books of twenty-five per cent. to dealers as a general discount leaving the question of discount, however, entirely to the individual publisher.

As an auxiliary society, the American Booksellers' Association was organized in March of the same year, with Henry T. Coates as president.

The new rules of the American Publishers' Association went into effect on May 1, 1901. To the list of members previously mentioned, the following names were added in May, 1901: the Robert Clarke Co., the American News Co., Henry Holt & Co., George W. Jacobs & Co., Lothrop Publishing Co., A. J. Drexel Biddle and Cassell & Co.

On July 15 the association reviewed the work accomplished during the past two months, and stated that it had been able to effect a restoration of net prices in all but three cases of price-cutting brought to its notice. The outlook for the success of the plan was said to be encouraging, and the net-price agreement generally maintained.

By August the tracking down of the source of supply of the most notorious price-cutters engaged the attention of the bookselling world.

A circular letter was sent out November 1, describing some of the methods of obtaining books in vogue among the price cutters and asking the co-operation of the trade in the enforcement of trade regulations. Another publisher, The American Baptist Publication Society, joined the ranks at about this time, while the proprietors of Abraham & Straus, who had thus far opposed the net rule abandoned their position. In January and May, 1902, certain amendments relative to fiction were adopted.

The membership of the Association grew steadily, including in September, 1902, the following names: the Jamieson-Higgins Co., Clinton S. Zimmerman, the Baker & Taylor Co., John Wiley & Sons, D. Van Nostrand Co., Thomas Whittaker, W. A. Wilde Co., and Herbert B. Turner & Co.

Many new names were added by October, the new members being Henry Altemus Co., A. C. Armstrong & Son, Arnold & Co., A. S. Barnes Co., Albert Brandt, Brentano's, John S. Brooks & Co., C. M. Clark Publishing Co., G. W. Dillingham Co., E. P. Dutton & Co., Dana Estes, Charles E. Goodspeed, A. J. Holman & Co., Home Publishing Co., National Publishing Co., New Amsterdam Book Co., Outlook Co., Oxford University Press, L. C. United Brethren Publishing House, Vir Publishing Co., Frederick Warne & Co., A. Wessels Co., and E. & J. B. Young & Co. The membership now embraced practically every publisher of importance.

In December, 1902, R. H. Macy & Co. brought suit to restrain the American Publisher's Association and the American Booksellers' Association from enforcing the rules against underselling and sued for perpetual injunction against the defendants' black-listing them. Further amendments against price cutting were adopted by the Association in 1903. By January, 1904, the membership had grown to 72. At a meeting held in January of that year the questions of the placing of fiction on the net list and of juveniles on the same basis as that on which fiction is now sold were considered. Mr. Charles Scribner declining re-election, Mr. Frank H. Scott was elected president, Mr. Charles Scribner vice-president, Mr. Frank H. Dodd, second vice-president, Col. Daniel Appleton, treasurer, Mr. Frederick A. Stokes, secretary. An amended plan was adopted on March 11, 1904. This excluded juveniles from the net system, bound the members not to sell their copyrighted books to anyone who offered protected books in combination with a periodical at cut prices, named a maximum discount, cut off book clubs from discount on net books, authorized managers to report price cutters to the Association and trade, and enjoined members to immediately report price cutters.

The Association in 1907 adopted a new plan for the net price system to obviate arraignment as a conspiracy or combination in restraint of trade by placing their plan of reform merely in the form of a recommendation, leaving its execution to the honor of individual members. In view of the probable resignation of certain firms who were affected by the text book situation in certain states, a meeting was called in July, 1908, to consider the continuance and future administration of the Association at which it was agreed to continue the policy of the Association as heretofore.

Frank N. Doubleday was elected treasurer in October, 1908 and Frederick A. Stokes, secretary. In February, 1912, Frederick A. Stokes was elected president, Frank H. Dodd, vice-president, Frank N. Doubleday, secretary, and Nelson Taylor treasurer.

In 1912 the Association entered upon a little different line of activity, hitherto neglected, several lunches being held at which various members read papers.

The following were elected to office at the meeting held in March, 1913. F. A. Stokes, president; Frank H. Dodd, first vice-president; Warren F. Gregory, second vice-president; George H. Doran, treasurer; Herbert S. Baker, secretary; F. C. J. Tessaro, manager.

When the question of admitting books to the parcel post came up in 1913, the Association entered energetic protests against the unqualified inclusion of books.

After various fortunes the Macy litigation was finally settled in favor of the complainants and in 1914 the American Publishers Association paid the agreed damages. The question of disbanding was considered as soon as this was out of the way.

GOVERNOR OF MASSACHUSETTS OPENS BOOK SHOW.

Boston was formally introduced, last Monday, to "The Better Books of the Year" when the Publishers' Co-operative Bureau officially opened to the public its elaborate exhibit on the fourth floor of the Paine Furniture Company's Building. A distinguished company of Boston's booklovers gathered for the opening exercises, attracted not alone by the exhibit, but also by the list of men who were expected to speak. Among these were Governor Walsh, who opened the exhibition; Richard B. G. Gardner, manager of the Publishers' Bureau; John Kendrick Bangs, Rev. Edward A. Horton, chaplain of the Massachusetts Senate; Nathan Haskell Dole, representing the Boston Author's Club; and A. L. Winship, for the Boston City Club.

W. B. Clarke presided over the meeting and made brief addresses of introduction and welcome.

Bostonians who attended the formal opening found the exhibit admirably arranged to achieve the bureau's purpose in offering it. The publishers have not been content with making their show attractive to the usual devotees of books, but have hoped more especially to create a new interest in books among persons who have previously been indifferent to them. For this purpose they have reduced to a minimum the number of books shown, by exhibiting only the pick of the season's publications.

Thus visitors move among the various departments of the exhibit with no sense of bewilderment and without fatigue. There is none of that half-conscious discouragement that the mere sight of a library's countless tomes so often causes. Publishers who might have sent 150 or more books from their fall lists have cut their selections to thirty or forty, making sure that these should be of interest and appeal.

Fine rugs, beautiful furniture, attractive arrangement give the whole exhibit background and atmosphere. The visitor could feel, in a fashion, says the Evening Transcript, that he was enjoying some new books just brought home by a friend whose taste he admired. To choose another figure, it is as though the offerings of an artistic catalogue of the season's books, suddenly came to life, or to actual being, while one's fingers were turning its pages.

Author's original manuscripts, paintings and drawings that have been used to illustrate the season's books, and documents of interest to all bibliophiles, cover the walls of the exhibition hall. At the right of the entrance is the whole series of Lester G. Hornby's original drawings of "Picturesque Boston." At the left is "the Children's Corner," pleasantly furnished in the manner of a nursery, where are gathered about a hundred of the novel, prettily decorated volumes which will make Christmas happy for young readers. Harrison Cady's drawings for Thornton Burgess' "Bed-time Stories," color-drawings by Jessie Wilcox Smith, and some of George Kerr's fantastic designs are among the exhibits in the Children's Corner.

The veriest old fogey among business men could not fail to be interested in the "Model Library for Business Men." It includes all the latest works on finance and scientific management, not to mention enough prophetic forecasts of American business to make the fortunes of a dozen speculators.

The Old Corner Book Store and the Lauriat Company have both sent exhibits that reflect credit on the "selling end" of the booktrade as it is carried on in Boston.

The finest bindings from London and American craftsmen are shown in their exhibits. These companies have not restricted their selections to the books of the publishers who are members of the bureau, but bring all the volumes which they regard as worthy of special exhibit to the attention of visitors.

Houghton Mifflin Co. have, in addition to their book tables, an interesting exhibit of the book in all its stages, from manuscript through proof sheets to final completion, and also a skilled binder at work to show visitors the process of decorating fine hand-tooled volumes.

A special collection of books on the war, including the newest war volumes, hot from the press, drew the attention of the crowd. A gem of the manuscript collection is the title page and first two sheets of the manuscript for "Vandover and the Brute," just as they were found in an old chest in San Francisco among the effects of their author, Frank Norris, many years after his death. For this novel, Norris is shown to have used foolscap paper, which he has carefully ruled, leaving a wide margin at the left for numerous corrections and second-thoughts, covering the whole with a labored hand, and printing his titles and legends in careful but ugly capital letters.

Another gem of the manuscripts is a whole sheet which O. Henry has covered with possible titles for the book that he finally called "Sixes and Sevens." About forty titles there are, ranging in idea and in kind from the North to the South Poles. They run like this: "The World and Its Door," "Girl," "Mean Elevation," "Caliph and Cad," "A Money Mint of Men," "Chapparal Christmas," "Pride of Cities," "Sacrifice Hits," "Run o' the Mine," "A Medley of Moods," "Joseph's Coat," "Pepper and Salt," "O Henriettes," and enough more to make the most fertile newspaper head-writer mad with envy.

Every day during the month of November, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m., the exhibit will be wide open for the free inspection of all who care to come. The Paine Furniture Company will be co-hosts with the Publishers' Co-operative Bureau.

The programme for the balance of the week follows:

Thursday—Authors' Day. Guests included: Judge Henry B. Shute, author of "The Real Diary of A Real Boy"; Miss Abbie Farwell Brown; James B. Connolly, winner of the Collier $2,500 short-story prize; Dennis McCarthy, author of various books of Irish verse; and others. Readings from their works was a feature of their programme.

Friday—Women's Club Day. In charge of Mrs. True Worthy White, chairman of the Department of Literature and Library Extension of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, and her committee.

Saturday—Children's Day. Readings to children by authors.

CONVICT TWO MORE IN BOOK FRAUD CASE.

AFTER being out only one hour, on November 2, the jury which for two weeks had been trying the rare-book fraud case in the Federal District Court, before Judge Foster, returned a verdict of guilty against James J. Farmer, president of the Anglo-American Authors' Association, of 225 Fifth Avenue, and Col. William J. Hartley, one of his chief agents. On the other hand, it acquitted Thomas P. Dunn, who also stood trial with them. The two men convicted were admitted to $10,000 bail until Friday morning, to permit them to make argument on a motion for a new trial. Fraudulent use of the mails is the charge on which the verdict was rendered. They received a two year sentence.

This ends the trial by which the government has hoped to break up country-wide frauds in the sale of so-called rare books which, it is asserted, has taken from the public in the last few years millions of dollars. Of the other men indicted with Farmer and Hartley, Glen Farmer, son of J. J. Farmer, is now serving a sentence for a similar offense in a Massachusetts penitentiary; W. H. Scott is said to be in a lunatic asylum; Romeo Nathan has pleaded guilty; Samuel Warfield, acquitted in the Federal courts, has been arrested on a grand larceny charge by the State authorities, and George Fisher has been permitted to go free.

One more witness was called Monday by the defense to show that the prices charged by the defendants were not exorbitant. Albert M. Adam, a Chicago bookbinder, valued their edition of Shakespeare at $100 a volume and the Queen Victoria series at $250 a volume.

Then Isaac Weill, counsel for Dunn, addressed the jury, urging that three letters on which the government relied to connect him with the alleged conspiracy were ordinary business communications and proved nothing.

James R. Ely tried next to explain the "Col. Bill" letters which were put in by the government. He scoffed at the emphasis put upon the phraseology in familiar letters, and described the government's book experts as pessimists of the worst sort. Moreover, he attacked the theory of conspiracy, saying that there was no combination, but every man was out for himself competing with his neighbors for business.

Both Mr. Roosa and Assistant District Attorney Woney attacked the defendants and their tactics severely for their misrepresentations, and Mr. Roosa denounced Miss Wennesse, secretary for Farmer, whose forgetfulness had been a stumbling block to the government.

The jury was not able to come to a decision with regard to Dunn—an elderly, white-haired man, who had fainted in the course of the proceedings—until it had sent for the letters which had been used as evidence against him. When the verdict of acquittal was announced, Col. Hartley was the first to congratulate Dunn.

A BOOK TRADE "CAUSE CELEBRE"—THE IVES "COLUMBUS LETTER."

THE death of Gen. Brayton Ives, reported last week in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, recalls to older members of the trade the law suit over the notorious "Columbus letter," in which Gen. Ives figured as plaintiff. The case deserves to rank as a book trade cause célèbre, equally on account of the trade prominence of the parties involved, its intrinsic interest, the unique points of law and bibliography raised and its many years' duration. The younger members of the trade, familiar with it only as a trade tradition, may find of interest the following summary of the case:

General Ives was, it will be remembered, an enthusiastic rare book collector, his library including at one time the Gutenberg Bible and many other rare books. The story of his acquisition of the bogus Columbus letter, really copied from an original discovered in 1862 and now kept under lock and key in the Ambrosian Library at Milan, and the subsequent law suit runs thus:

In the spring of 1889 a London bookseller, Ellis by name, advertised a newly-discovered "editio princeps" of the letter in Spanish of Christopher Columbus, written on his return from his first voyage and addressed to Luis de Sant Angel, 1493—a veritable "prototype," he claimed, of the copy at Milan. Unable to obtain in England the £2000 which he demanded for this rara avis, he came to America, and at length sold it to Mr. Brayton Ives, of New York, for $4374, or £900. It is but fair to Mr. Ives to say that he was suspicious of several crude features of the booklet, but Ellis assured him that these were really proofs of its authenticity. And, in fairness to Mr. Ellis, it should be said that he undoubtedly believed in the genuineness of the book, and sold it in good faith.

Five years later Mr. Ives sold this book to Dodd, Mead & Co. at public sale for $4,300 with a guarantee; the second purchasers, however, on maturer thought, felt convinced that the work was spurious and demanded their money, which they received. Whereupon Mr. Ives after consulting with specialists concluded that he had made a mistake in the first transaction and sued Ellis to recover the difference between $4374 and $255, which latter amount experts declared to be the maximum value of the book. The case was tried before Justice Leventritt, in February-March, 1899, where disinterested students of book-lore and expert typographers as witnesses showed beyond question that the book could never have been printed from movable type. Apparently the jury were convinced, but, to the astonishment of every one, they brought in a verdict for the defendant, giving later the absurd reason that "they believed their verdict in favor of the booklet would establish its genuineness and therefore give Mr. Ives an opportunity of selling it at a high price." Mr. Ives did not appreciate the charitable logic of this decision, and took the case to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of New York, and finally to the Court of Appeals, which, on December 18, 1901, reversed the decision of the lower courts.

Finally, in the spring of 1902, after nearly seven years of litigation, during which time the defendant had died and his partner had withdrawn from the firm, Brayton Ives offered to abandon the suit if the Ellis heirs would share a portion of the expense already incurred, and the case disappeared from the courts.

The method by which the bogus letter was produced is of some interest. According to an article which appeared at the time in the Centralblatt für Bibliothekswesen, the forger, unable to see and photograph the original letter, had procured a copy of the Marquis d'Adda's well-known facsimile of the Columbus letter. This copy was made by the lithographic method for d'Adda by a Milanese calligrapher, in 1866, and 150 copies were sold, which are by no means rare. By the aid of tracing-cloth the forger obtained a tracing of this facsimile, transferred it to stone, unified the letters according to some Gothic text similar in type to the Columbus letter, introduced some voluntary "misprints" and "glosses" and drew his proofs. His paper consisted probably of blank sheets from some ancient document. The relief effect of an impression from movable type was obtained by laying tracing-cloth over the proof and following the contour of each letter with a stylus. This accomplished, the booklet was ready to be "discovered" as an "editio princeps."

Questions of water mark in the paper, typography, duplication of typographical errors and other points all joined in discrediting the Ellis-Ives letter, while Mr. Harris in the article referred to above quotes trustworthy Italian authority to the effect that the chief participant in the forgery confessed his share therein before his death.

So passed into history another remarkable instance of miscredited talent, misplaced confidence and misspent wealth.

H. W. WILSON CO. TAKES OVER TWO PUBLICATIONS.

Two publications have just been taken over by the H. W. Wilson Co. of White Plains, N. Y., the Index to Legal Periodicals and Law Library Journal, a quarterly published for the American Association of Law Libraries, and a weekly entitled Public Affairs Information Service, Bulletin No. 1 of which appeared on October 15th. The latter is called a "co-operative clearing house of public affairs information published for co-operating institutions."

It is the outcome of a co-operative information service organized in September, 1913, by John A. Lapp, librarian of the Legislative Reference Library of the State of Indiana. Nearly forty of the legislative and municipal reference libraries of the country joined in this Service, contributing information for their locality and subscribing $25 for the first year for the support of the service. Information was sent out from headquarters at the State House in Indianapolis weekly on mimeographed sheets. This Information Service was found to be very useful, but lacking in one respect; that is, it was not cumulated.

The H. W. Wilson Co., in taking over this Public Affairs Information Service, has undertaken to send the information to the subscribers in the form of weekly bulletins, which are to be cumulated bi-monthly and annually. In addition to supplying as complete information as possible relating to legislation and public affairs, the Service will also secure the sending of material to co-operating institutions, thus relieving the separate libraries of the necessity for individual correspondence. When necessary, material will be loaned from headquarters to the subscribing libraries, and bibliographies and other material will be copied at actual cost of labor.

In consideration of the improved service, the co-operating libraries are subscribing $100 a year. During the first two years, while the Service is necessarily in an experimental stage, the H. W. Wilson Company has agreed that all subscriptions received will be devoted exclusively to the printing, compiling, and other direct expenses of the Service.

The Service will attempt to systematically cover the following sources of public affairs information.

1. State legislative studies, investigations and special reports on state problems.
2. Municipal and civic body studies, investigations and special reports on city problems.
3. Court decisions touching the constitutionality of any law or ordinance.
4. Proceedings of international, national and state organizations and special studies or reports made by them. A specialty will be made of municipal leagues.
5. Civic and social organizations and bar associations.
6. The work of legislative and municipal reference bureaus and other similar institutions whether published or in typewritten form.
7. Important legislation enacted in the states and cities.
8. Miscellaneous sources yielding material of significant value in public affairs movements.

A LONDON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

WAR'S ALARUMS AND BOOKS OF THE AUTUMN.

LONDON, October 21st.

Our publishers are making a gallant effort to carry through an autumn book season, but it is hard work. Broadly speaking, they have been acting on the principle of issuing the books big enough, important enough, to be likely of adequate success, even allowing for the excursions and the alarums of the European war.

What happens is that some days we have good war news from the British point of view and then trade goes well and occasionally, indeed, very well. On the other hand, there are days when there is no news, or single misfortunes which the lively imagination of the public is apt to exaggerate, and then there is a slump in the book trade, and publishers and booksellers are a little inclined to despair.

What we are really having is a publishing season of ups and downs, according to the state of the war barometer and, perhaps, the surprising thing is that so many books are doing so comparatively well. I happened, the other day, to meet a well-known publisher who had just issued a new story by a popular authoress. "How is it doing?" I asked him. "I think," he said, "that it will sell about three-quarters of what it would have sold if we had not had war." He expressed himself satisfied with this return, and if it can be applied to the autumn books generally, why, at least, they will pay their expenses and something more, and that is a better condition of affairs than had been expected when Armageddon broke out at the beginning of August.

About that time there appeared a volume called "Memories of the Kaiser's Court," by Miss Anne Topham, who had been English governess to the German War Lord's only daughter. It immediately began to sell and it has been selling ever since. The war book pure and simple which has sold best is a cheap edition of the work in which General von Bernhardi foretold how Germany would conduct a great campaign. Another volume rushed out for the war, which has sold 100,000 copies and more in paper covers, is Dr. Karl Graves' spy book, "The Secrets of the German War Office."

By good luck, Mrs. Baillie Reynolds happened to write of Bruges and thereabout in a new novel called "The Belfry," and this circumstance has given it a war circulation. The peace side of war, if one may use the expression, is the subject of Baroness von Suttner's posthumous novel, "When Thoughts Will Soar," but here it has not had anything like the success of her previous books, "Lay Down Your Arms!"

One of the liveliest and most readable books emerging from the actual fighting in this war, is a little volume by the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland, called "Six Weeks at the War." When it broke out she took an ambulance corps over to Belgium, and she has set down her experience with great vivacity, observation, and even humor. She saw a good deal of the Germans, and when the Kaiser's gaily dressed officers sought to treat her as a "charming woman," she was able to meet them very well and wittily in their own language.

When the British troops were fighting in Africa years ago, General Buller said that they were "splendid." Their splendor as fighters in the present war has again drawn out the chief admiration of the British nation. This has led, casually enough, to something of a boom for a little book called "The Epistles of Atkins," which just happens to have been reprinted in Dent's Wayfarers' Library. It was a study, in a dozen essays, of what war in South Africa meant to the plain British soldier. As war on the Continent is meaning very much the same thing to him, and he is describing it in very much the same way in his letters, this book has met a distinct want on the part of British readers and they have bought it quite largely.

Perhaps an idea of the general activities of the English book trade since the war commenced may best be indicated if I give a list of the chief novels which have appeared or done well in the way of circulation, thus:

The "Wife of Sir Isaac Harman," by H. G. Wells. "The Price of Love," by Arnold Bennett. "A Soldier of the Legion," by Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Williamson. "The Wall of Partition," by Florence Barclay. "Innocent," by Marie Corelli. "The Laughing Cavalier," by Baroness Orczy. "The Man of the Moment," by Elinor Glyn. "World's End," by Amélie Rives. "Sinister Street," vol. 2, by Compton Mackenzie. "Oddsfish," by Robert Hugh Benson. "Perch of the Devil," by Gertrude Atherton. "Prince and Heretic," by Marjorie Bowen. "Aladore," by Henry Newbolt. "The Encounter," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick. "The Three Sisters," by May Sinclair. "The Clean Heart," by A. S. M. Hutchinson. "Monsieur de Rochefort," by H. de Vere Stacpoole. "John Barleycorn," by Jack London. "Old Andy," by Dorothea Conyers. "The Unpetitioned Heavens," by Charles Marriott. "Penrod," by Booth Tarkington. "A Knight on Wheels," by Ian Hay. "Wild Honey," by Cynthia Stockley. "The Man of Iron," by Richard Dehan (Miss Clo Graves, author of "The Dop Doctor"). "The Achievement," by Temple Thurston. "Spragge's Canyon," by Horace Annesley Vachell. "Night Watches," by W. W. Jacobs.

No doubt a work by Mr. Arthur Balfour, the eminent Conservative statesman, "Theism and Humanism," will rank as the most important serious book of our publishing winter. We have just had a volume concluding Sir George Trevelyan's "American Revolution," and the third volume of "The Life of Benjamin Disraeli" will be ready before Christmas. Naturally Lord Charles Beresford's breezy memoirs are being widely read, and no doubt it will be possible to say that of "The Life of Sir John Lubbock" when it comes along.

There have been readers for a very pleasant book called "Coasting Bohemia," of which the author is Mr. Comyns Carr, and there will be readers for Count Ilya Tolstoy's reminiscences of his father. "My Adventures in the Commune," by Mr. Ernest Vizetelly, is a book which has a certain war interest. There is no war interest, but certainly an intense human interest in Mr. Stephen Graham's "With Poor Immigrants to America," a volume which has sent his name up another peg as a shrewd social student and observer.

In the way of poetry we are having a volume by Thomas Hardy, as we have just had a new play from Rabindranath Tagore, whose father's autobiography, by the way, is also recently published. Maeterlinck, who has thrown himself into the great fight for the freedom of his country, that is to say Belgium, gives us a volume of high literary flavor called "The Unknown Guest," and we have "Notes on Novelists," from Mr. Henry James, also another volume, "The Syrup of the Bees," by that wonderful renderer of Eastern color, Mr. F. W. Bain.

Possibly these notes on the English autumn book season are a little scattered, but that is exactly where they resemble the season itself. It is struggling through as best it may on a pre-war basis, for all the books had been arranged for before people thought of Armageddon. It must come into any future literary plans, for it is going to make a great change in the reading of the English people. Necessarily it will also stand for a completely new point of view in what is written, and authors are already taking thought with themselves in this sense.

CANADIAN NEWS.

Special Correspondence to the Publishers' Weekly.

TORONTO, October 23.—To stimulate the bookselling business of Canada during the next two months and to offset the depressing effects of the War, Canadian publishers have devised a modest little advertising scheme, which it is hoped will have a helpful effect on the situation. Early in the season members of the Publishers' Section of the Toronto Board of Trade, which embraces in its membership practically all Canadian publishers, got together and discussed ways and means of supporting the booksellers in this trying time. The final proposal, which has now been adopted, was to issue a series of card-hangers for display in stores and show-windows. Six of these have been prepared and will shortly be sent out to every bookseller in the Dominion. A covering letter, couched in the following terms, will accompany the cards:

Dear Sir:

THIS IS THE BOOKSELLER'S YEAR.

The War has made it so. Money will not be spent this year as in other years on costly gifts. Economy in gift-buying will govern gift-makers.

To the perplexing question, "What shall I give this year?" the big answer is BOOKS.

To help you sell more books this year, the Publishers' Section of the Toronto Board of Trade has had prepared a series of Six Cards. Each bears a short yet cogent reason why BOOKS should be chosen this year as Christmas gifts. Each card closes with the words, boldly displayed, Give BOOKS this Christmas.

These cards are printed in two colors on heavy white Bristol and have a cord by which they can be hung. They measure 11 x 14 inches.

A complete set will be sent you in the course of a few days with the compliments of the Publishers' Section.

You are asked to display these cards prominently in your shop and windows. It is also suggested that you prepare several window displays of books, using these cards to reinforce their appeal to gift-buyers.

In this way you will assuredly increase very greatly your book sales this Christmas. Indeed, this year's Christmas sales ought to be a red letter event in your bookselling history. Beyond a peradventure you can make real what we assert: namely that

This is the Bookseller's Year.

Yours cordially,

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of the Publishers' Section of the Toronto Board of Trade.

The wording of five of the six Cards is shown on the page opposite.

Is gift-choosing hard? Then decide on a BOOK. BOOKS as gifts fit every relationship and pay every indebtedness of good-will.

Whether you be parent, kinsman, lover, friend, patron or employer, or whether you would reciprocate a kindness shown, the gift of a BOOK is the solution of your problem of what to give. A BOOK meets, as does nothing else, the predilection of those to whom you wish to show favor.

GIVE BOOKS THIS CHRISTMAS

A well-chosen BOOK is a delicate compliment to the one to whom it is given, for it is expressive of an appreciative understanding of his mind, mood and character.

BOOKS happily chosen accomplish their twofold function: They give true pleasure to those who receive them, and gratify the sentiment that prompted their giving. For this reason you should

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE wife of H. F. Jenkins, of Little, Brown & Co., died on November 2, after a long illness. The sympathy of the trade goes out to Mr. Jenkins in his loss.

News has come of the death at the front of another associate of the booktrade—Wolfgang Koehler, a young member of the firm of K. F. Koehler of Leipzig.

TOM GALLON, English novelist and dramatist, died in London on November 4. Born in London in 1866, he was educated privately, and his first work was that of a clerk in a city office. In 1895 he started writing short stories and hunting for stray guineas in Grub Street. Among his publications were: "Tatterley," "A Prince of Mischance," "The Kingdom of Hate," "A Rogue in Love," "Rickerby's Folly," "Mystery of John Peppercorn," "The Lady of the Cameo," "Jarwick, the Prodigal," "Meg, the Lady," "Jimmy Quixote," "The Cruise of the Makebelieves," and many others. Some of his plays were: "The Man who Stole the Castle," "Memory's Garden" (with Albert Chevalier), "The Devil's World," "The Great Gay Road," and others. Mr. Gallon was a member of the Greenroom, Whitefriars and New Vagabonds clubs.

HENRY GANNETT, president of the National Geographic Society, chairman of the United States Geographic Board and geographer of the United States Geological Survey, died at his home in Washington, D.C., on November 5. He was born in Bath, Me., August 24, 1846, and was educated at Harvard University. He was a member of the Hayden Survey of the Territories, and assisted in planning the work of the United States Geological Survey when that bureau was created. He became chief geographer in 1882. His literary and statistical works included a manual of topographical surveying, the statistical atlases of 1880, 1890 and 1900, a commercial geography, a dictionary of altitudes and Stanford Compendium of Geography. He compiled a number of gazetteers and was the author of the contour map of the United States, of "Magnetic Declinations in the United States," and of "Forest Conditions in the United States." Mr. Gannett was also a contributor to many of the standard encyclopedias.

EDWARD P. JUDD.

EDWARD P. JUDD, president and treasurer of The Edward P. Judd Co. and dean of the booksellers of New England, died on October 30, while on a visit at the home of his daughter in Evanston, Ill. He had been in feeble health for some time. Born seventy-eight years ago in Port Erie, Pa., Mr. Judd later removed to New Haven, where, in 1859, as a member of the E. P. & R. J. Judd, Jr., firm, he first started in the book business. At that time the Judd store was at 146 Chapel Street instead of its present location at 827 Chapel Street. In 1861 the partnership was dissolved, R. J. Judd, Jr., retiring. Mr. E. P. Judd, the senior partner, then received James Monroe Clark into partnership, and this connection continued for three years, when Mr. Clark sold his interest to W. W. White, for many years connected with the firm of Durrie & Peck. Mr. White retired in 1877, and the business was then conducted for seventeen years by E. P. Judd alone. In 1894 the business was incorporated under the name of "The Edward P. Judd Co." Since the business was established it has been greatly extended and enlarged, and now includes a wholesale department of stationery and post-cards imported direct, and a circulating library of several thousand volumes.

Nothing illustrates the position which Mr. Judd occupied in the New England trade so well as a letter recently received from Andrew W. Phillips, for many years an active professor at Yale. It reads in part: "For fifty years the Judd bookstore and Mr. Judd have been household, school and college words in New Haven. His ability, his enterprise and his knowledge have built up one of the most famous bookstores of New England, a place where scholars and professional men were attracted, for Mr. Judd was a fountain of information in every line of book lore. He was always alert, genuine, genial, with a pungent wit, a hatred of shams, and an appreciation of all that was best in life."

Mr. Judd is survived by three daughters—Mrs. Albert B. Fifield, whose husband has for some time past been the acting manager of the business, and Mrs. Edward L. Durfee, both of New Haven, and Mrs. Allen A. Keane, of Evanston, Ill. It is announced that the business will go on as before without change.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MRS. F. MARION CRAWFORD, widow of the novelist, who died in 1909, was recently married in Rome to Francesco Tomassetti, son of the famous archaeologist.

WALTER THEODORE WATTS-DUNTON, the literary critic, who died on June 7, left an estate of $114,670. The will gives directions for the administration of the copyrights of his own and Algernon Charles Swinburne's writings, and directs that Swinburne's manuscripts and books be sold at Sotheby's.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

ABOUT ONE PER CENT. of the $440,253 due to creditors of the Success Magazine has been realized from a sale of the assets, according to a report of Edward Kaufman, referee. The total assets were $5,514, and the proceeds of the sale was $4,354.

THE EDITORIAL PERSONNEL OF The New Republic, the weekly periodical making its debut this month, is as follows: Herbert Croly, author of "The Promise of American Life"; Walter E. Weyl, author of "The New Democracy"; Walter Lippman, author of "A Preface to Politics" and "Drift and Mastery"; Francis Hackett, formerly editor of the Chicago Post "Friday Literary Review"; Philip Littell, formerly editorial writer of the New York Globe; Charlotte Rudyard, formerly an editor of Harper's Magazine.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"BAMBI" has passed the third edition mark and is still going.

"THE EYES OF THE WORLD" seems to be keeping up with the record sales of Mr. Wright's earlier books. It is already past the 750,000 mark.

THE T. Y. CROWELL Co. has just published two attractive books of the illustrated gift-book type—"Stories from Robert Browning" and "Stories from Wagner."

BOBBS-MERRILL are offering this Christmas popular editions of "The Lady of the Lake" and "The Princess," both illustrated by Howard Chandler Christy, and both formerly published in an expensive gift edition.

THE GEORGE H. DORAN Co. will publish this fall a special edition, with color illustrations by Hugh Thompson, of Sir J. M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton," the play in which William Gillette charmed so many thousands.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. announce new editions in leather binding of "Bob, Son of Battle," by Alfred Ollivant (illustrated), "The Best Stories in the World," by Thomas L. Masson, "A Journey to Nature," by J. P. Mowbray, and "Songs of Nature," by John Burroughs.

THE BARSE & HOPKINS "My" books, "To My Mother," "To My Dad," etc., are good books for the bookseller to bear in mind when anxious little bookbuyers come into the store to get something nice for "mother" or for "dad."

T. FISHER UNWIN, of London, is the British War Office agent for the sale of their official book and map publications, including the Army List, Military Training Manuals, Regulations, and Topographical General Staff maps of the various countries.

A PEACE BOOK has just been issued by the Abingdon Press under the title, "God's Paths to Peace." The author, Ernst Richard, a well-known figure in the American peace movement, discusses the evolutionary processes making for world peace.

IS SUFFRAGE to be "The Enemy of Woman"? A woman, Winifred Graham, asks that question in her novel of that title just published by Mitchell Kennerley. The various characters reveal in the course of the story the motives inspiring the militants, antis and moderates.

IN "WILLIAM JAMES AND HENRI BERGSON," published recently by the University of Chicago Press, Dr. H. M. Kallen, a former student and friend of Professor James, presents the relation between the philosophies of the American and French thinker.

A BOOK with a specialized but constantly widening sales field is "The Modern Gasoline Automobile," published by the Norman W. Henley Co. The man who drives and tinkers around his own car would be interested in such a book.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY announce the second impression of Davis's "A History of Mediæval and Modern Europe," revised, with war maps, to October 1, 1914. The summary of causes of the European War was written immediately after the author's return from Europe, where he made a first-hand study of the situation.

HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY Co. is issuing a set of dollar classics that are bound to appeal to the bookbuyer who likes a well made and attractive book at a moderate price. The "Shakespeare" plays, sonnets, poems and Temple notes, complete in one volume, was published on Tuesday.

SULLY & KLEINTEICH announce publication on November 14 of "The War in Europe, Its Causes and Consequences," edited by Rossiter Johnson. The book narrates, with the help of maps and illustrations, the causes of the war, facts about the countries involved, statistics of armies, navies and air fleets, and much other interesting matter.

IT MIGHT PAY the bookseller who has an eye open to the possibilities of book sales in rural communities to look into "Play and Recreation for the Open Country" (Ginn & Co.). It deals with the problem of making rural life attractive, and contains many suggestions for the organization of recreation in the rural home, the rural school, and the rural community.

"ON-SALE" books are old in the trade, but we believe that they are a new thing in retail selling. Macauley Bros., of Detroit, sent out some advertisements, recently, reading: "'The Broad Highway,' Jeffery Farnol's great novel, now only 50 c. If you don't like the book, return it and your 50 c. will be refunded." Mr. Macauley writes us: "We have had good results, and so far no copies have been returned."

LEOPOLD B. HILL is publishing in England a Flemish-English Phrase Book (Dagelyksche Hulp voor Belgen in Engeland), compiled by E. V. Bisschop, containing a selection of words and phrases for daily use, with pronunciation of all English words, and a short list of military terms in English-Flemish and Flemish-English. This is, so far as we know, the only book of its kind.

NOW THAT "THE SICK MAN OF EUROPE" has wobbled to his feet and joined in the war, Stanwood Cobb's "The Real Turk," published early in the fall by the Pilgrim Press is deserving of especial note. Mr. Cobb spent three years in Turkey at the time of the rise of the Young Turk Party, and in his book he discusses the Turk from many angles, as a business man, in his home life, as a citizen, his religion, etc.

WITH THE DECEMBER NUMBER of this year, "The Bibelot" will be concluded, as the series of twenty volumes, originally planned, will then be complete. Mr. Thomas B. Mosher, the editor and publisher, has met with admirable success in his purpose to offer to lovers of good literature a reprint of poetry and prose, chosen from scarce and generally unknown editions and sources, which combines inexpensiveness with choice typography.

SCRIBNER HAS JUST PUBLISHED "The Poems of Edgar Allen Poe" in an edition that should make an attractive gift for the literarily inclined. The volume is edited by E. C. Stedman and Professor G. E. Woodberry, and besides the text there is an essay on Poe's poems and critical notes giving the various readings, etc. Scribner also published during the last week "The Trawler," James B. Connolly's short story of the sea which won the $2,500 Collier short story contest.

THERE IS A POSSIBILITY that Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian author, may be elected to the French Academy by acclamation, to fill the seat of the late Jules Claretie. The members of the Academy are considering such action as recognition of the close relations at the present time between France and Belgium. If M. Maeterlinck is elected, it will be the first time a foreigner has become a member of the French Academy.

DR. EDMUND VON MACH, who has presented the German side of the great war in "What Germany Wants" (Little, Brown & Company), has been engaged by the Boston Transcript to present the German viewpoint to its readers from week to week. Dr. von Mach, although now a naturalized American, is a native of Germany, where he served his full term of military service. He still remains in active touch with German affairs through his brother, who is governor of one of the districts of West Prussia.

"The Clique," the organ of the antiquarian book trade of London, has put forth a special issue in aid of Lord Kitchener's appeal for blankets for British soldiers. Advertisers were asked to pay a half-penny per line more than the regular price, the proprietors agreed to add an additional half-penny and the money thus raised was to be spent for blankets. At the top of the cover was a cut of the British flag with Mr. Asquith's words "No price can be too high to pay when honour and freedom are at stake."

A VOLUME OF INTEREST to collectors of Americana and to students of pre-Revolutionary annals was published on Oct. 15 by W. A. Butterfield. The book in question is an illustrated "Life of Dr. Mather Byles," the noted Boston Tory preacher, poet, and wit. Dr. Byles was a graduate of Harvard and after forty years pastorate at the Hollis Street Church in Boston was driven from his pulpit because of his Tory views. His friends and correspondents included such men as Alexander Pope, Dr. Isaac Watts and Benjamin Franklin.

EVERY PARENT faces the problem of the restless child and the need for play. "A Manual of Play"—just published by Jacobs—takes up: The home playroom; The home yard and gymnasium; What children play at each age; The play of babies; Bottle dolls; Self-directed play; Floor play, table play, playing store, collections and treasure trove; Play for girls; Sunday play; Fifty play devices; The meaning and value of play; and many other practical play ideas. The author, William Byron Forbush, is acquainted with child life and is the author of "The Boy Problem," "The Coming Generation," and other books.

RANDALL PARRISH's book, "The Red Mist," published by McClurg, tells the story of a Confederate spy in hiding at the home of a Southern girl named Noreen. They are warned that a leader of a guerilla band is on his way to force Noreen to marry him in order to obtain her property. As there seems to be no escape, Tom and Noreen agree to marry in order to outwit the guerilla. They bolt the door and, amid hammerings and shots outside, force an old parson, with a revolver pressed to his cheek, to perform the ceremony. The door is finally broken open, and reveals instead of the supposed guerillas a detachment of Federal cavalry.

ONE OF THE MOST important German books on America, published before the war broke out, is "America To-day and To-morrow," by A. Holitscher, published by S. Fischer of Berlin. This work has been criticized as an unusually complete and well-written description of the present-day business and politic life of the United States. Another book, "Mammonarchs," by H. Prehn von Dewitz, published by the Franckh Publishing House in Stuttgart, also deals in part with Big Business in America. The chapter, "Great Foreign Fortunes" concerns the American "Mammonarchs": John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, J. P. Morgan, several of the Vanderbilt family, and Thomas A. Edison.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish immediately two books bearing directly on the European war. One is "Treitschke," a volume presenting the writings of the great German historian on the army, international law, German colonization, liberty, Russia from the German point of view, Germany and the neutral states and many other subjects in which he was instrumental in shaping Germany's present Kriegslust. The other book is "The Supreme Court of Civilization, The Cause of the Double Alliance vs. The Triple Entente," by James M. Beck, late Assistant Attorney-General of the United States. In the latter, the writer weighs as a judge the causation for the present war and the relative responsibilities of the nations involved.

DODD, MEAD & Co. are publishing to-day a number of new titles. The novels include Robert Hugh Benson's "Oddsfish!" a story of the time of Charles II, and Pierre de Coulevain's "The Wonderful Romance," a story with an underlying stratum of serious discussion of the problems of marriage, love, religion and immortality. The only book of a biographical nature is Mrs. Taft's "Recollections of Full Years." Of travel books, the list includes four: "Cuba, Past and Present," and "Porto Rico and San Domingo of To-day," both in the nature of guide books for the American tourist, and "Brazil and the Brazilians" and "The Charm of Ireland," in more discursive vein. Of the more substantial sort, "The Mystery of the Kingdom," by Albert Schweitzer; a war book, "Germany's Madness"; a juvenile, "Captain Billie"; and a popular edition of von Bülow's "Imperial Germany" complete the list.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—The Webb Book Company, of 2010 Second Avenue, after occupying the same building sixteen years, moved five doors east on October 1. The new number is 2022 Second Avenue. In the new location, the company has a modern building, with double the room, high ceiling and good light.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—The Commonwealth Co. has been incorporated, with a capital of $25,000, to do a publishing and bookselling business.

NEW YORK CITY.—Some months ago reference was made in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to the purchase of the interest which the estate of Gustav E. Stechert has had in G. E. Stechert & Co. This interest was purchased by Alfred Hafner, whose connection with the firm is of twenty-five years' standing.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—McDevitt's Book Omniorium in the Fillmore Street fire sustained a minor loss, which was fully covered by insurance.

SPOKANE, WASH.—The H. H. McCabe Drug Co. has purchased the Post Office Book Store of William Buckley.

SUMTER, S. C.—Parrott's Book Store is reported to have filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

PICK-UPS.

There is a decided literary flavor to the story that Colonel Harvey is said to have told to President Wilson with such effect as to bring about a reconciliation between the two men. According to the story as it is retold in the Bookman, a stranger entered the Harper Building in New York and with evident embarrassment said that he wanted to buy some books. The clerk suggested the works of Mark Twain, but noticing the blank look on the stranger's face asked, "Haven't you ever heard of Mark Twain?" "Never." "What," continued the clerk, in amazement, "never heard of 'Tom Sawyer'?" "No." "Never heard of 'Huckleberry Finn'?" "The Innocents Abroad?" "Puddin'head Wilson?" A light of recognition broke over the stranger's face. "Puddin'head Wilson! Sure. I voted for the fool last year."

Fox, Marion. Ape's-face. N. Y., J. Lane. J. Lane. 319 p. D. $1.25.

Following the tradition of their house, that one member of the family had always slain another every hundred years at Christmastide, the Delane-Mortons on Christmas Eve find themselves in the grasp of the monster Hatred. Ordinarily an amicable household, brother now rises against brother in a quarrel over a woman, and the master of the house awakes from sleep to find himself in the clutches of a bat-like creature that almost murders him. The intuition and courage of a girl, the only daughter of the house, prevents tragedy, restores peace and goodwill, and breaks the power of the curse. Incidentally, the strange night's work has a romantic ending for the girl, Ape's-face, so nicknamed by her brothers.

- Graham, Winifred, [Mrs. Thdr. Cory.] The enemy of woman. N. Y., Kennerley. c. '10. 394 p. D. $1.35 n.
Famous as an opponent of the suffrage movement in England, Lionel Marsh, instead of denouncing it in his waited-for parliamentary speech, pleads eloquently for it. The simple explanation of this is that Meg Marsh, his twin sister, has spoken in his place in disguise. She is a militant leader and willing even to die for the cause. The results of this are farther reaching than the separation of the brother and sister, and contrast the methods of the militant with those of women who "use silent influence in politics." In the end Meg merges her own career in her brother's, and agrees with him that she has been her own worst enemy. Though set up in 1910, book is just placed on the general market.

Four of the six Wiskotten brothers had given all their energies to the success and expansion of a great German factory, Gustav as organizer, August with his business acumen, William as salesman, and Fritz with chemical inventions. Paul, the literary member of the family, and Ewald, the youngest, had contributed nothing. The mother had set apart her youngest for the ministry, but Ewald's ambition was to become an artist. At length these two sons also find expression in the factory for their artistic and literary cravings, the one as designer of patterns, the other as a writer of explanatory text. With this romance of labor are interwoven individual romances.

Leonard, Mary Finley. Susan grows up. N. Y., Crowell. c. 5+307 p. il. D. $1.50.

Susan's father is an invalid, and to help out she and Bessie embark in the home-made candy business, and achieve success. Then Susan makes a new friend, Joanna Story, who almost rivals Holliday of an earlier "Susan" story—now abroad. There is a mystery about the new friend which sets the neighborhood guessing, but which is finally explained in a satisfactory manner. At length, romance walks in and claims one after another of the circle of Susan's friends and the heroine herself.

"Quahaug," Yankee for clam, is the nickname which the villagers of Bayport, give to a writer of adventure who, with his distant cousin Hephzibah, lives in their midst. The latter idolizes "Quahaug," whose real name is Kent Knowles. Story centers about Hephzibah's orphan niece. Her father was an embezzler who fled from America, and who raised his daughter in the belief that Hephzibah's family had defrauded him. Hephzibah and "Quahaug" go to England, where they have amusing differences of opinion with the manners and customs. Hephzibah's finds her niece and loses her again immediately, to "Quahaug."

Whereas "Emmy Lou" turned the flashlight on the public school, Selina does the same service for the home and outside world. Selina's father has to keep his nose to the grindstone constantly, and even then the bills are never all paid. After her graduation Selina begins to teach, but that does not mend matters materially. She has lovers and therein some members of her family see the solution. But Selina has advanced ideas for a girl of the 80's and vows that, when she marries, it will not be to solve the economic problem.

Two years ago on their return from Panama, Mr. and Mrs. Pennell were fired to do a book on their native city. Philadelphia appealed to them on personal grounds and in virtue of the artistic contrast between the old and new—forty years ago and today. The drawings, as is the purpose of the artist, give one a keen appreciation of the essential beauty of our modern cities, of our industrial age. The description, full of personal anecdotes, is a word picture of the last generation of social life in an American city.

Sinclair, May. The three sisters. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 388 p. D. $1.35 n.

These daughters of a Garthdale vicar represent distinct attitudes toward life, and marriage in particular. Alice, the youngest, is aggressive; Mary the oldest, is meek. Between is Gwenda, the most unselfish and with the largest view. In their village is only one man, Rawcliffe, suitable for any of them to marry. Alice is infatuated with him. He is most attracted to Gwenda, but is a cad without courage to make convincing love to her in the situation. He allows her to go away in order to leave Alice the field. But Mary takes this chance and succeeds in marrying him. Meantime Alice brings the family to the edge of tragedy. Gwenda returns and sees Alice safely married. One hopes that the life of dull duty with her father that Gwenda settles into will not last.

White, W. Holt. The man who dreamed right. N. Y., Kennerley. c. '10. 314 p. D. $1 n.

It began by being a question of personal morals. It would have ended there. But the duchess and the lovely Cecilia heard of Mymms' perplexity about whether it was "gambling" to back a horse that always won just as he dreamed. From them the news spread. A London paper engaged Mymms to "tip the winner." Everybody was trying to think what to get Mymms to dream about. The German ambassador was the quickest; he kidnapped Mymms for the government at Berlin. Cecilia and her admirer only rescued Mymms from this to have to hand him over to the United States. That country submitted the question to the Hague Tribunal. The court decided to abide by whatever Mymms would dream its decision would be! Set up in 1910, only just published.

Wiggin, Kate Douglas Smith, [Mrs. G. C. Riggs], and Ingersoll, Helen. The Birds' Christmas Carol; dramatic version. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 18+103 p. D. bds., 60 c. n.

Mrs. Riggs' introduction comments on writing of the original story and makes suggestions to amateurs for the acting of this version.

Winterburn, Florence May Hull, [Mrs. G. W. Winterburn.] The mother in education. N. Y., McBride, Nast. c. 14+335 p. D. $1.50 n.

Logical and practical plan by which one can direct the education of her young children before they go to school. Aims to give a cultural foundation, not merely one of facts; and is flexible enough to be useful to the mother who has little time at her disposal.

Wyeth, J. Allan, M.D. With sabre and scalpel; the autobiography of a soldier and surgeon. N. Y., Harper. c. 19+534 p. il. pls. pors. map. O. $3 n.

Life of a New York physician, who has been farmer, woodsman, Confederate soldier, cotton-planter, cattle-buyer, medical student, river pilot, building contractor, land speculator, telegraph-operator, twice president of the New York Academy of Medicine, and founder of the New York Polyclinic. Includes history and anecdote of many famous men.

The Publishers' Weekly

Subscription Rates.

One year, postage prepaid in the United States, $4.00; foreign, $5.00.

Single copies, 10 cents. Educational Number, in leatherette, 50 cents; Christmas Bookshelf, 25 cents.

Advertising Rates.

One page	$25 00
Half page	14 00
Quarter page	7 00
Eighth page	4 00
One-sixteenth page	2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, unspecified wants, repeated matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

WE have been in business for upwards of 125 years and until within comparatively recent years have confined ourselves to the production of our own requirements. We have at the present time an organization in the Printing and Bookbinding business second to none. Our staff of proof readers is one of the best in the country.

On account of certain recent readjustments, we now have capacity for doing an additional amount of Printing and Binding.

We can execute all kinds of work in the Printing and Bookbinding line from an ordinary pamphlet to the very highest grade of commercial Cloth and Leather Binding. We cater for high-grade work only; our prices, however, are very conservative.

Among some of the accounts on our books are the following to whom we refer for reference:

Oxford University Press, American Branch
International Textbook Co., Scranton, Pa.
Encyclopaedia Britannica
Doubleday, Page & Company
Presbyterian Board of Publication
Henry Holt & Company

Review of Reviews
Harper & Bros.
George H. Doran Company
Fleming H. Revell Company
The Bobbs-Merrill Company
The Christian Herald

W. R. Caldwell, and many others.

We especially refer you in reference to the execution of work of the most exacting character to Oxford University Press; Encyclopaedia Britannica; International Textbook Company; Doubleday, Page & Company; and Henry Holt & Company.

Best equipped House in New York for Composition, Presswork, and Binding.

Our equipment consists of Linotype and Monotype machines, Job, Flat-Bed, Harris, and Web presses.

Send us your manuscript and we will produce a finished product satisfactory to the most exacting client.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in OCTOBER, 1914

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas. W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

A Chronological Key to the Great War

INDEX TO DATES OF CURRENT EVENTS

THIS monthly periodical, always extremely useful to Editorial Offices, and in the Reference Department of Public Libraries, is just now of unusual value to all readers of the press who are studiously following the course of events in Europe. It gives monthly a full chronology of all events, and prints quarterly and semi-annual cumulations. It forms automatically an analytical index to the daily newspaper press—being the only publication of its kind.

The number for October is a quarterly cumulation. It covers the events of three months (July—September) and is therefore a day-to-day index history of the war to October 1st.

The war entries alone total nearly 1600, 18 pages of fine print; but this mass of material is carefully subdivided topically for quick reference. The events of the separate campaigns are, for instance, in consecutive order. Other subheads are "American Tourists in Europe," "High Cost of Living," "Naval Engagements," etc. The war fortunes of individual cities and individuals may be traced by copious cross references.

Special price for October Number 50 cents.

Subscription Price: $4.00 per annum.
